PROGRAM NOTES

Alleluia! Laudamus Te
Alfred Reed began formal music training at the age of 10 as a trumpet player. He was already playing professionally while still in high school, and shortly thereafter began the study of harmony and counterpoint as a prelude to composition, which had come to exercise a stronger hold on his interest and ambition. He spent three years during World War II as a member of an Air Force Band, where he became deeply interested in the concert band and its music. Following his service, he enrolled at the Juilliard School of Music. From there, in 1948, he became a staff composer and arranger for NBC where he wrote and arranged music for radio, television, albums and films.

Malone College of Canton, Ohio, on the occasion of its third Annual All-State Band Festival, commissioned “Alleluia! Laudamus Te.” The piece is dedicated to the college’s concert band director, Richard S. Mountford. It is a canticle of praise without words, as the band is treated largely as a single massive choir which is broken down further into individual sections. Each of these sections functions as a separate sub-choir. The music is based on three main themes: the first, a massive chorale in the brass; the second, a long flowing line in the French horns and woodwinds; and the third, a quasi-fanfare figure first heard in the trumpets, which moves among the other sections of the band as it is developed. These three themes are assembled in an arch design, as the first two themes return after the third, now presented in reverse order. The recapitulation features the addition a new voice, appropriate to the style of the work.

On this Bright Morning
David Maslanka has served on the faculties of the State University of New York at Geneseo, Sarah Lawrence College, and New York University. Since 1990 he has been a freelance composer. Maslanka’s music for winds, known for its power and heartfelt inspiration, has become especially well known.

“On this Bright Morning” was written for a consortium of Montana high school bands. The musical material—melody, harmony, and rhythm—are all very simple, but also quite delicate and demand the utmost control from as large an ensemble as a symphonic band.
The composer invites the players to commit fully to a very direct and powerful feeling. To the score, he attaches the following quote, taken from an interview with the poet, Jane Kenyon:

“Yes, there are things in this life that we must endure that are all but unendurable, and yet I feel that there is a great goodness. Why, when there could have been nothing, is there something? How, when there could have been nothing, does it happen that there is love, kindness, beauty?”

Third Suite
Robert Jager served as arranger/composer for the U.S. Armed Forces School of Music from 1962-65. He went on to be the lecturer in composition and conducting at Old Dominion University in Norfolk, Va. In 1971, he moved to join the faculty at Tennessee Technological University from which he retired in 2001. In his career, Jager has received numerous honors for his works, including being the only three-time winner of the American Bandmasters Association Ostwald Composition Award.

His “Third Suite” was written in the last year in Washington, D.C. It was composed for Leo Imperial, director of the Granby High School Band of Norfolk, Va., and is dedicated to him and his band. In crafting the work, Jager begins with standard forms typically associated with music for wind bands (refer to Gustav Holst’s “Second Suite for Military Band” as an excellent example). His take offers unusual shifting time signatures and serpentine harmonies that are at once challenging and satisfying to the musician.

Ecstatic Fanfare
Those familiar with Bryant’s larger, 22-minute piece, “Ecstatic Waters,” will recognize the same exuberant joy from the first movement in this shorter work: “Ecstatic Fanfare.” Laden with descending intervals of fourths and fifths, crisp articulations in the brass and woodwinds, and soaring, majestic melodies, it reminds the listener of works by Aaron Copland and John Adams.
October
Notes by composer Eric Whitacre
October is my favorite month. Something about the crisp autumn air and the subtle change in light always make me a little sentimental, and as I started to sketch I felt that same quiet beauty in the writing. The simple, pastoral melodies and subsequent harmonies are inspired by the great English Romantics (Vaughan Williams, Elgar) as I felt that this style was also perfectly suited to capture the natural and pastoral soul of the season. I’m quite happy with the end result, especially because I feel there just isn’t enough lush, beautiful music written for winds. “October” was premiered on May 14, 2000, and is dedicated to Brian Anderson, the man who brought it all together.

Angels in the Architecture
Notes by composer Frank Ticheli
“Angels in the Architecture” was commissioned by Kingsway International, and received its premiere performance at the Sydney Opera House on July 6, 2008, by a massed band of young musicians from the countries of Australia and the U.S., Matthew George, conductor. The work unfolds as a dramatic conflict between the two extremes of human existence — one divine, the other evil.

The work’s title is inspired by the Sydney Opera House itself, with its halo-shaped acoustical ornaments hanging directly above the performance stage. But the title also connects to the following quote by 20th-century Catholic mystic and writer, Thomas Merton: “The peculiar grace of a Shaker chair is due to the fact that it was built by someone capable of believing that an angel might come and sit on it.”

“Angels in the Architecture” begins with a single, soprano voice singing a 19th-century Shaker song:

I am an angel of Light
I have soared from above
I am cloth’d with Mother’s love.
I have come, I have come,
To protect my chosen band
And lead them to the Promised Land.

This “angel,” represented by the singer, frames the work, surrounding it with a protective wall of light and establishing the divine. Other representations of light, played by instruments rather than sung, include a traditional Hebrew song of peace (“Hevenu Shalom Aleichem”), and the well-known 16th-century Genevan Psalter, “Old Hundredth.” These three borrowed songs, despite their varied religious origins, are meant to transcend any one religion, representing the more universal human ideals of peace, hope, and love. An original chorale, appearing twice in the work, represents my own personal expression of these aspirations.

The “Gum-Suckers” March
Notes by C. Michael Kelly
A “Gum-Sucker” is a nickname for Australians born in Victoria, the home state of Percy Grainger. The eucalyptus trees that abound in Victoria are called “gums,” and the young shoots at the bottom of the trunk are called “suckers”; so “gum-sucker” came to mean a native of Victoria, just as Ohioans are nicknamed “Buck-eyes.”

The “Gum-Suckers” March was sketched for wind band in the late 1930s, but not finished until the summer of 1942. The first theme was composed by Grainger at Hill Hall, Epping, England around 1911, and the second theme dates from 1905. The complete march was worked out in the summer of 1914 at Evergood Cottage, Goudhurst, Kent, England, and scored for orchestra late that year in New York. Grainger used what he called “tone-clashfulness” (writing of independent harmonies for the various families of instruments, creating moments of dissonance). The lyric theme from this march can also be found in his “Colonial Song” and “Australian Up-Country Song.” The second theme contains motives from “The Widow’s Party March.”

Festival Overture: The Year 1812
Notes by C. Michael Kelly
It’s safe to say that almost everyone knows the flashier aspects of “Tchaikovsky’s 1812 Overture”: cannons, church bells, brass bands. The solemn overture is undoubtedly one of the most sure-fire crowd pleasers to resound through the concert hall (even though it was originally intended for outdoor performances).

Tchaikovsky was at the height of his career when he was commissioned in 1880 to compose a feature piece for performance at the All-Russian Exhibition of Arts and Crafts in 1882. His first four symphonies, the First Piano Concerto and several celebrated orchestral showpieces had firmly established his international reputation as the current grand master of Russian composers. For the exhibition, he wrote a tribute to one of the most triumphal moments in Russian history, the defeat of Napoleon’s invading army near the beginning of the century.

Most of Tchaikovsky’s music is at least somewhat programmatic, but in no other piece is the program quite so transparent. The overture begins with a Novgorod peasant tune, played first by the strings then augmented by woodwinds, representing the simple purity of Mother Russia. One can almost imagine the land itself as a slumbering giant, secure in its own strength. Suddenly, the serene atmosphere is broken by a stormy passage heralding the incipient war. It was as if a messenger burst through the doors into a church service announcing “We’ve been invaded.”

A single snare drum signals the march of Napoleon’s army onto the scene, announced by the horns. The Russian Imperial Army defends its territory in a fierce clash, but the invader prevails as bits of the French national anthem “Le Marseilles” periodically rise above the clamor. The Russians retreat.

In quiet retrospect, the people mourn the desecration of their homeland by invaders and prepare to rise against the French. Battle is resumed, but once more “Le Marseilles” is heard, as the French prevail, and once again the people mourn. Yet a third time the Russian troops attack, and this time the land itself — the sleeping giant — rises up to join with its people and throw off the invader’s yoke. (Coincidentally, this is historically accurate, for it was the Russian winter that actually defeated Napoleon’s far superior military forces.)

The victorious third conflict leads to a celebration unprecedented in orchestral music: a salute by cannons, pealing of church bells, the Czarist national anthem, along with the solemn melody that opened the work. Tchaikovsky even throws in snatches of the march that originally heralded the arrival of the French, but “Le Marseilles” is nowhere to be heard. Mother Russia has prevailed, and joy is everywhere.
ANDREW McMahan

Andrew McMahan joined the faculty as director of bands in the fall of 2010. He teaches courses in music theory and conducting, as well as instrumental literature and rehearsal techniques. Dr. McMahan also serves as administrator, artistic director and conductor for all ensembles under the purview of the Cal Poly Band Program.

Prior to his appointment at Cal Poly, McMahan served as the coordinator of instrumental studies at California State University Stanislaus. At CSU Stanislaus he directed the Wind Ensemble, and taught courses in conducting, brass pedagogy, and instrumental literature. Although in this position for only two years, McMahan organized two successful band/orchestra festivals, assisted with promoting the school through community outreach and high school student recruitment, and took the Wind Ensemble on a 10-day performance tour of Germany, Austria and Switzerland.

Before moving to California, McMahan spent time at the University of Minnesota both as a teacher and as a doctoral student. While there, he was the director and principal conductor of the university’s Campus Orchestra, and was a frequent guest conductor with the Wind Ensemble, Symphonic and University Bands. He also became well known as the announcer and master of ceremonies for the 320 member strong “Pride of Minnesota” Marching Band. Before arriving in Minneapolis, McMahan spent four years as the director of instrumental studies, studio trumpet teacher, and instructor of secondary music education at Simpson College, a liberal arts institution outside of Des Moines, Iowa. He also served as the executive director and founder of the Simpson College Big Band Jazz Camp, a week-long festival of jazz studies held each June.

A native of North Carolina, McMahan earned his Bachelor of Science in Music Education degree from Western Carolina University, Master of Music degree from the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, and Doctor of Musical Arts degree from the University of Minnesota. His previous teaching experience includes three years as a high school music teacher in both parochial and public high schools in the metro Milwaukee, Wis., area.

McMahan maintains professional memberships with the College Band Directors National Association, California Band Directors Association, and the World Association of Symphonic Bands and Ensembles. He is also an honorary member, advisor and chapter co-sponsor of the Iota Pi chapter of Kappa Kappa Psi.

Christopher J. Woodruff

Christopher J. Woodruff joined the faculty at Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo, as associate director of bands in the fall of 2006. In addition to his responsibilities with the Wind Orchestra and Mustang Band, he teaches courses in music theory and music appreciation. As instructor of trumpet he also coaches the Cal Poly Brass Choir and teaches methods courses in brass pedagogy.

Woodruff earned a bachelor’s degree in music education at Louisiana State University and taught high school band for several years in Florida. He continued studies in conducting at Northwestern University, where he received the Eckstein Band Conducting Grant and completed a master’s degree in music. While in Chicago, he served as music director of the Spring Valley Concert Band and was a guest conductor for the Northshore Concert Band and the Northshore Chamber Orchestra.

Prior to his arrival on the Central Coast, he served as director of symphonic and marching bands at University of Northern Iowa and director of bands at Lycoming College in Pennsylvania. His guest conducting appearances have included concerts with the Penn Central Wind Band, Williamsport Symphony chamber players as well as the Northshore Concert Band and Northshore Chamber Orchestra, both in Chicago. As a trumpet player, he has played with the Baton Rouge Symphony, Billtown Brass Band and Williamsport Symphony Orchestra.

He maintains a full schedule of guest conducting, coaching and trumpet performance. He has presented courses on conducting, rehearsal methods and brass pedagogy. His current performance calendar includes guest conducting appearances for the University of Tennessee All-State Band and for the San Luis Chamber Orchestra. In recent months he was appointed as assistant conductor for the San Luis Obispo Symphony. He has performed solo works for trumpet with the Symphony of the Vines and the Cal Poly Wind Orchestra, and he has performed solo cornet with Orchestra Novo.

Woodruff holds professional memberships with the Music Educators National Conference, California Band Directors Association, College Music Educators Association, World Association of Symphonic Bands and Ensembles, and the International Trumpet Guild. He is also a member of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, and Pi Kappa Lambda and is chapter co-sponsor of the Iota Pi chapter of Kappa Kappa Psi.
 Len Kawamoto has been serving as the assistant director of the Mustang Band since the fall of 1998. Born in New Hyde Park, N.Y., and raised in Torrance, Calif., he is an alumnus of Cal Poly and the Mustang Band. As a student, Kawamoto studied computer science while playing horn in the Mustang Band, Wind Orchestra, and the Chamber Orchestra. In addition, he participated in musical organizations such as the SLO County Band, SLO Chamber Orchestra and the Sacramento Freelancers Drum and Bugle Corps. His student leadership positions included equipment manager, executive officer, and Mustang Band president. Kawamoto is also a founding father of the Iota Pi chapter of Kappa Kappa Psi National Honorary Band Fraternity.

After earning his Bachelor of Science degree in computer science, Kawamoto accepted his current position as assistant director for the Mustang Band. Kawamoto is a member of the College Band Directors National Association, the International Horn Society, and the IEEE Computer Society. He also performs regularly with the San Luis Obispo Wind Orchestra, Core-tete, and Pacific Coast Brass Ensemble. He has previously performed with the Cuesta Wind Ensemble, the San Francisco Renegades Senior Drum and Bugle Corps, and the Renegades Mini-Corps.

In addition to his responsibilities with the Mustang Band, Kawamoto maintains his professional alter ego as a software engineer for a local engineering company.

Mike Moreno is the “voice” of the Mustang Band. Born in Santa Barbara, Moreno has been involved in Central Coast radio since 1988, first with the iconic K-OTTER 94.9. Moreno now holds the evening shift at Q104.5. He has been the play-by-play voice of Arroyo Grande High School Football and is currently the play-by-play voice of Paso Robles High School Bearcat Football. Moreno has served as Cal Poly’s public address announcer since 1996.
